A bar-room bard, a and Delia's recipe

Some women are so famous they need only one name. Cilla, Esther, Lulu, Cher, and, of course, Delia, who has also achieved rare status in the world of celebrity cooks, in that the others don't bitch about her. At various times, Marco Pierre White has hated Nico Ladenis who has hated Antony Worrall Thompson who has hated ... and on it goes. But almost all of them respect Delia, partly because she does not run a restaurant and is therefore not in competition with them, but partly because she is simply very hard to dislike – even if you support Ipswich Town, East Anglian rivals of Delia's beloved Norwich City FC. Delia is the majority shareholder in Norwich City, and has imposed her eating philosophy on the players, insisting that they forsake extra chips for extra virgin olive oil. She is not unique in the business of squeezing more goals out of footballers by changing their diets – Arsène Wenger has done much the same at Arsenal, where Petit is not just the name of a creative midfield player but also the size of the side orders of French fries. But as a foodie in control of a football club, Delia is unique. It is only a matter of time before even the fans at Norwich find that they can no longer buy hefty meat and potato pies at the ground, only slabs of spinach quiche, with an accompanying rocket and parmesan salad. On Delia Smith Day, her seminal series How to Cook will run in its entirety.

UK Style, Monday 30th, from 7.00am

Gravel-voiced singer, songwriter and actor Tom Waits was born in the back of a taxi and has done things his own way ever since. Waits, whose recent album Mule Variations garnered glowing reviews, began composing songs while working at a club in San Diego, where he would write down snatches of conversations he overheard at the bar. 'When I put them together,' he later recalled, 'I found some music hiding in there.' His first album, 1972's Closing Time, introduced listeners to his trademark songs about the dispossessed. He is a versatile and talented performer – his acting credits include Bram Stoker's Dracula – but during his low points he remembers actress Sarah Bernhardt, who had her leg amputated towards the end of her career. The leg was bought by a circus and displayed in a glass case. 'At that time her leg was making more than she was,' says Waits. 'Whenever I get depressed, I think about that.' Storytellers – VH1, Wednesday 8th, 10.00pm

Jo Brand's series Through the Cakehole is a fitting way to start Paramount's Funny Girls weekend, for it is, indeed, very funny. And Through the Cakehole is a fitting title for the series, because, as Brand likes to tell her stand-up audiences, her favourite sexual fantasy is smearing her naked body with chocolate and cream 'then being left alone to lick it off'. Brand built her reputation as a feminist comic raging against men. Inevitably, this led the tabloids to suppose that she was a lesbian, and they were somewhat taken aback, as were many of her fans, when she got married to a psychiatric nurse called Bernie. Brand was a psychiatric nurse herself for many years, after which drunken hecklers in comedy clubs held no fear for her. As she puts it: 'After having a machete waved in my face, comedy is a piece of cake.' There's that cake again. From the way Brand talks and swears, one might think that she was brought up on a tough council estate. In fact, she was raised in the heart of Middle England. Her father was an engineer, her mother a social worker. The second of three kids, Jo by all accounts, was a model child. Not until her late teens did her behaviour go haywire. But her recently retired mother is a big fan of the Brand brand of comedy. 'I like the sort of language that is very basic, perhaps because I'm convent-educated,' she says. Paramount Comedy Channel, from Saturday 7th cake-eating comedienne for soccer success

There's a bar in London that has Buffy the Vampire Slayer themed nights. The mind boggles. But in America, Buffy the Vampire Slayer is even more popular than it is here, making a major star out of Sarah Michelle Gellar. Moreover, Buffy's tortured ex-vampire boyfriend Angel, played by David Boreanaz, is soon to get his own spin-off series. Boreanaz has a dog to thank for his rise to fame. He was walking his pet in his native Philadelphia when an agent spotted him and reckoned that his good looks could go down well in Hollywood. If he could act, even better. In fact, Boreanaz already hoped to become an actor and clearly had some talent. He landed a guest spot on Married ... with Children, before successfully auditioning for Buffy the Vampire Slayer. Boreanaz had been warned that Hollywood was full of bloodsuckers. He never expected to become one. Sky One, Fridays, 8.00pm

Many comedians yearn to be taken seriously as actors. Probably the most successful in recent years is Robbie Coltrane, who, as the criminal psychologist Dr Eddie 'Fitz' Fitzgerald in Cracker, fleshed out one of television's great characters. ITV2's Cracker Week features every episode from series two, starting with To Be a Somebody. This three-parter was a brilliantly written, faultlessly acted drama in which Robert Carlyle seared the screen as an unhinged Liverpool supporter determined to avenge his father's death at Hillsborough. The script, in the memorable words of The Independent on Sunday's Robert Butler, was 'a dark, sulphurous monologue that comes off the page like a head-butt.' This is British TV drama at its absolute best. ITV2, from Monday 9th, 10.00pm

A group from Manchester with a name like Simply Red, were never likely to be Manchester City supporters. And this month the band will perform their infectious blend of R&B, funk and reggae as part of Manchester United manager Sir Alex Ferguson's testimonial celebrations at Haydock Park racecourse. The concert is to be shown live on Sky Box Office.

Acting has made Bruce Willis a mega-star but, more significantly, it cured his stutter. There was a time when he could barely say Moonlighting, let alone envisage that it would be the TV series to make him famous beyond his wildest dreams. Young Bruce's stutter did not prevent him becoming president of his high school student council, nor did this exalted position prevent him being expelled during his final year, for his involvement in what he enigmatically describes as 'the annual riot, the black-white anti-human fest'. After various dead-end jobs, Willis decided to study drama, having discovered that he could enunciate clearly when playing to an audience. In 1984 he appeared in Miami Vice as a gun-runner. Then along came Moonlighting, its success compounded by media attention generated by his off-camera spats with co-star Cybill Shepherd. They reportedly loathed one another. Carlton Select, daily from Thursday 2nd, 7.00pm

The case of the missing Hitchcock

As FilmFour screen a rarely seen Alfred Hitchcock masterpiece, Hilary Bonner talks to his daughter, Patricia, about living with a legend

THE MAN WHO KNEW TOO MUCH
FRIDAY 13TH, 8.00PM

PATRICIA Hitchcock O'Connell is the daughter of the most famous maker of suspense movies in history. To his legions of fans and to many of the actors he worked with, Alfred Hitchcock was a distant, scary figure.

But to Patricia, now a 71-year-old widow living in California, he was just dad.

'We were just a normal everyday family,' she says. 'Of course I was always on set with him when I was a child, but I never thought of that as being unusual. It was just visiting my father at work.'

Patricia Hitchcock (pictured above, left, with Psycho star Janet Leigh) was born in England and lived in London's Cromwell Road until she was ten years old and her legendary father's career took him and his family to Hollywood.

'My parents were very close,' says Patricia, who describes her parents' relationship as a true love story.

They met at Twickenham film studios when he was an aspiring young director and she was a continuity girl, and they were married for 54 years until Alfred's death in 1980.

Patricia was a successful TV actress in her younger days and had small parts in three of her father's films, Stage Fright, Strangers on a Train, and the famous Psycho, in which she played a secretary in a real estate office.

Working with her father was not a problem, she says.

'When you worked for him everything was very straightforward. You have to remember that he drew every shot, every picture. It was all mapped out.'

Her personal favourite of her father's films is Notorious, starring Cary Grant and Ingrid Bergman – 'because it was just so beautifully cast'.

She also has a big soft spot for the 1956 Hollywood version of The Man Who Knew Too Much starring James Stewart and Doris Day. But she has never even seen the British-made 1934 original, sometimes described as 'The Missing Hitchcock', which FilmFour will screen on 13th August, the centenary of the director's birth.

'I have just seen the James Stewart version again and I really think it's wonderful. Now I can't wait to see the original,' she says.

The early film, starring Leslie Banks, Edna Best, Peter Lorre and Frank Vosper, was withdrawn from distribution by Rank in 1956 with the release of the remake. Because of a protracted dispute over the rights, now finally resolved, it hasn't been seen on UK TV for more than 30 years and only very rarely on the big screen.

A sneak preview of what's coming to cable

- FilmFour is celebrating the skills of Nicolas Cage next month by dedicating a week to his films. Among those to be shown are The Cotton Club (the 1984 film directed by his uncle, Francis Ford Coppola) and Leaving Las Vegas (right), for which he won an Oscar in 1996.
- Caprice returns to Travel channel this autumn with series two of Caprice's Travels. Far from simply sticking to the exotic places such as Jamaica and Vienna, she will also be travelling to Wales and Britain's well-known seaside resort, Blackpool.
- Best-selling author Barbara Taylor Bradford has had novels galore made into TV mini-series. Carlton Select will be screening To Be the Best, the saga of the Harte empire, starring Lindsay Wagner, Anthony Hopkins and Stephanie Beacham, in October.
- Flubber makes its British television premiere on Disney Channel in October. The film stars the remarkably versatile Robin Williams as the absent-minded Professor Phillip Brainard, who creates a rubber-like substance than enables objects to fly through the air.

Women behaving badly

Crack open the Bolly, sweetie – Ab Fab's back. Hilary Bonner caught up with the outrageous Edina, PR supremo and errant mother of Saffy, better known as Jennifer Saunders

UK GOLD

ABSOLUTELY FABULOUS
TUESDAYS FROM 10TH,
9.00PM

SHE is a working mother who likes to drive around in a red Italian sports car with the hood down while she sings along to country and western music. Her name is Jennifer Saunders. She is among the very brightest and most successful women of her generation. We know surprisingly little about her because she is almost as famous for her dislike of interviews and interviewers as she is for her work on television.

And yet, when the barriers are dismantled, Jennifer is easily frank about herself, her family and her work.

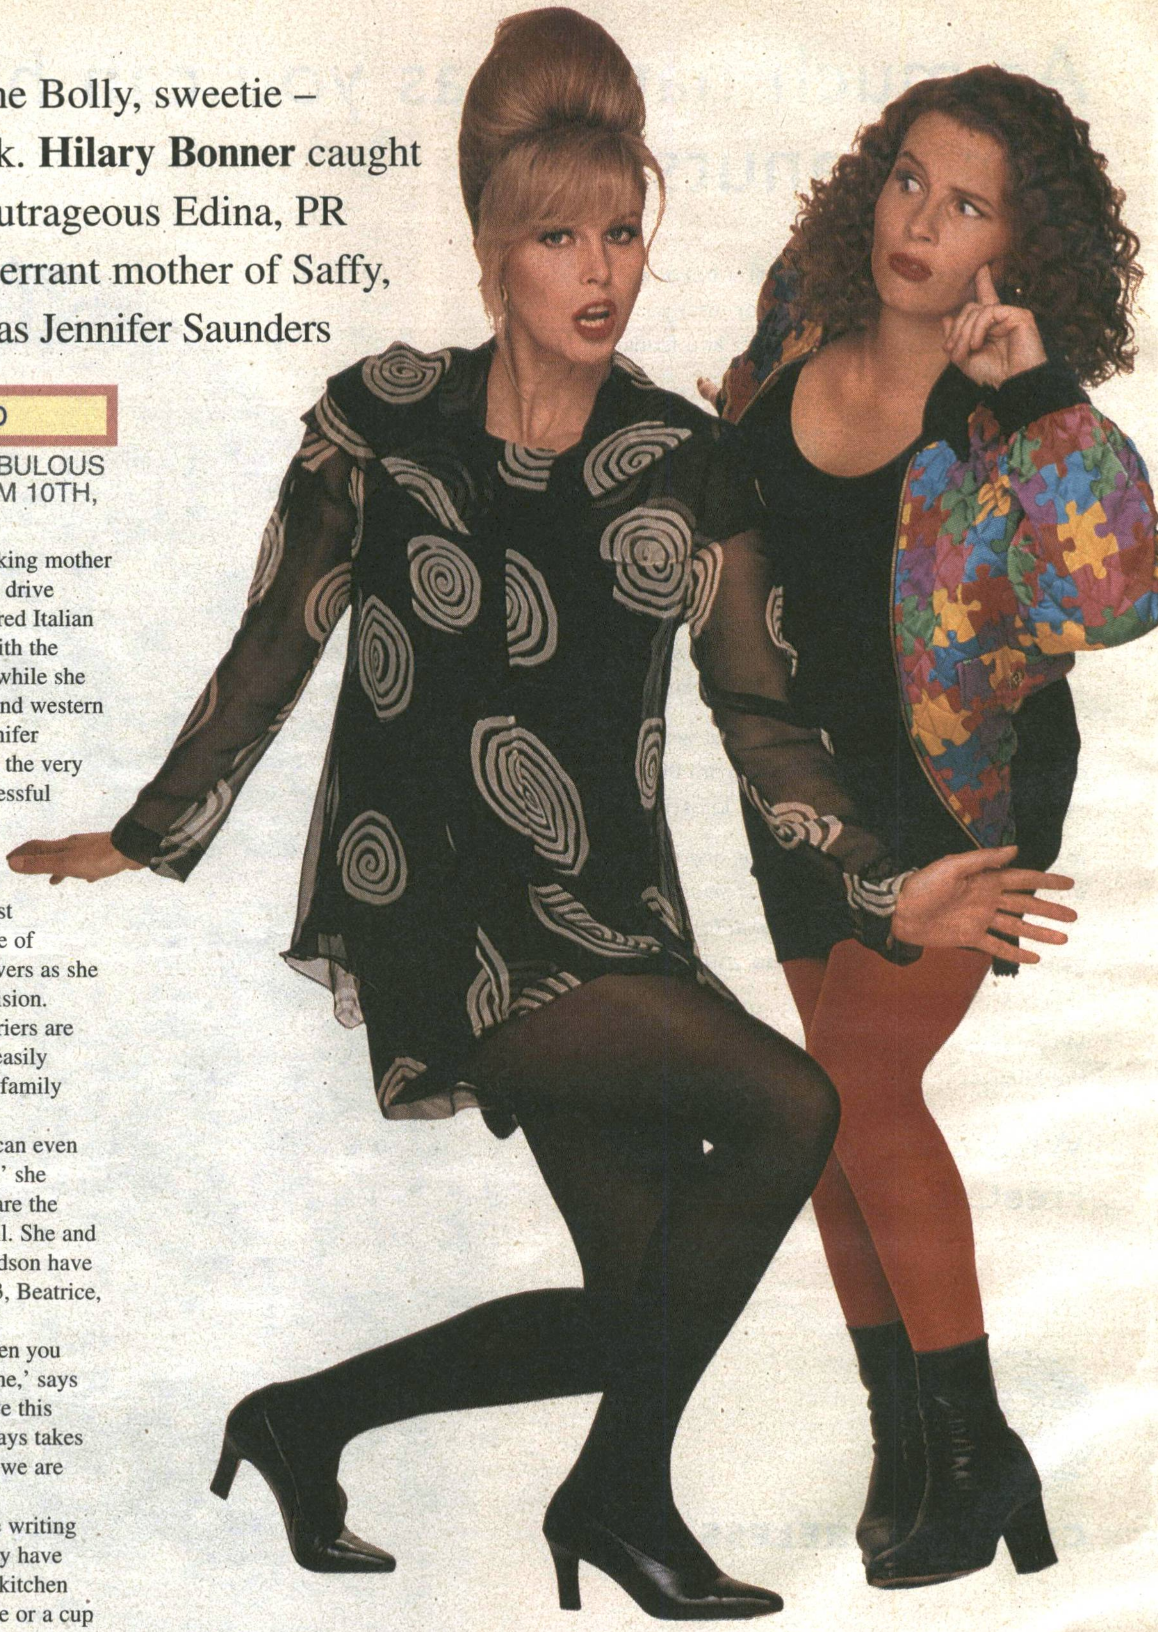
'When I am writing I can even be distracted by silence,' she announces. Her family are the greatest distraction of all. She and husband Adrian Edmondson have three daughters: Ella, 13, Beatrice, 11, and Freya, 8.

'When you have children you lose a lot of thinking time,' says Jennifer. 'Ade and I have this thing that one of us always takes them to school and that we are there at bedtime.

'Actually my favourite writing time is at night after they have gone to bed. I sit in the kitchen then with a glass of wine or a cup of coffee and I can work much better than I can in the office. I much prefer it.'

Her sitcom Absolutely Fabulous has become a television legend. It was born from a French and Saunders sketch in which Dawn French played Saffy the goody-goody daughter of mad-as-a-hatter PR supremo Edina, portrayed from the beginning by Jennifer.

By the time the idea of turning the sketch into a series came about, Dawn had decided that she needed to take some time off to be with her newly adopted daughter.



But the casting of Julia Sawalha as Saffy and Joanna Lumley, previously best known for her portrayal of upper class English roses, as the Bolly-swigging, chain-smoking magazine editor Patsy, proved inspired.

'You can put these characters in very ordinary situations and hopefully it is funny because they are so extraordinary,' says Jennifer. 'It was Ade who first suggested Joanna as Patsy. I think he just wanted to meet Joanna Lumley, actually.'

Everything you read about Jennifer Saunders refers to her stiffness, to her reluctance to smile. In fact, she smiles a lot and is very funny. Much of her wry humour is directed against herself.

'I can never write anything until I am right up against a deadline,' she confesses. 'And with the third series of Ab Fab it reached a very dangerous point. I seem only to be able to write at just the moment when the adrenaline kicks in – and it kicks in later and later.

'I was delivering the first draft of the scripts on read-through day. It was appalling. Unforgivable. So unprofessional. Six months to write it and I still did it at the last minute ...

'I told myself, you only have 29 minutes to fill. Twenty-nine minutes is nothing – the time it takes to take the kids to school. But it makes no difference.'

Husband Adrian, of The Young Ones fame, is very much more disciplined, she says, and is a novelist as well as a comedy writer. Jennifer has no plans to attempt a novel.

'I couldn't do it, I couldn't put it together, I don't know any punctuation or grammar. It's dreadful. I feel disabled.'

Her track record makes a nonsense of this, but she insists: 'It is true. Dialogue is easy – you just write it the way it sounds. But I don't know what colons are for, or dashes, or anything like that. I went to school at a time when that kind of thing wasn't considered important, they just wanted you to express yourself.

'I never remember being taught any grammar.'

And yet Jennifer, who teamed up with Dawn when they were both training to be teachers at the Central School of Drama, did actually teach English at one stage. 'Don't remind me of it, it's too appalling,' she says. 'It was only in teaching practice – but all the same! I never actually thought they would really put me in a school, you see.'

The three series of Ab Fab, followed by two 45-minute specials in 1996, remain among TV's biggest comedy hits, but Jennifer's latest project gives her a rest from writing.

She is currently filming a new BBC sitcom called Let Them Eat Cake, written by Surgical Spirit writer Peter Learmouth. Set in France at the time of Louis XVI, it stars Jennifer as an unprincipled aristocrat and Dawn French as her maid.

After that, though, the BBC hope that Jennifer will brave the word processor again, with Dawn, to write another series of French and Saunders.

The inimitable Edina (Jennifer Saunders) and Patsy (Joanna Lumley) doing what they do best – enjoying a liquid lunch

A class act

BY TIM EWBANK

Joanna Lumley has Terry Wogan, Ade Edmondson and a drag queen to thank for persuading millions of viewers that she is much more than a pretty face and a cut glass accent.

Joanna's acting career was becalmed in her forties until these three helped her become a huge TV comedy star as the chain-smoking, champagne-swigging Patsy Stone in Absolutely Fabulous.

It was while she was deputising for Wogan on his TV chat show that Joanna clinched the role of Patsy in the comedy classic. Comedian Ade Edmondson was watching and suggested to his wife Jennifer Saunders that Joanna would be a perfect co-star for the series she was writing.

So how did Joanna go about bringing the character to life?

'I adored playing Patsy and she did wonders for my career,' she says.

'I based Patsy's make-up on my days as a model in the Sixties. Lots of eyelashes and the kind of make-up you keep on and apply more to the next day.

'It had to be thick, nothing subtle, and I also made a lot of my mouth by following a drag queen's tip of using darker lipstick around the corner of the mouth and putting light in the middle.'

Joanna reveals in my book Joanna Lumley The Biography (published next month by Andre Deutsch) that she learned how to perfect her Patsy beehive when she was a convent girl in Hastings, Sussex.

'That bouffant look came in when I was about 15,' she says. 'People like dusty Springfield and Brigitte Bardot had their hair piled up on top of their heads and I used to backcomb mine furiously to try to look the same.

'Since Absolutely Fabulous I've been offered dozens of roles of drunken women, all badly written I might add. All of them hadn't picked up that Patsy was so much more complex than just a hard drinker. So I've had to say thanks but no thanks to those offers.'

Joanna won several awards for her portrayal of Patsy and she says the man-mad blonde desperately chasing her long-lost youth was such fun to play.

'But it was hard work, too,' she adds. 'I spent my 50th birthday in a blizzard on a mountain top in Val d'Isere shooting the final episode of Absolutely Fabulous. So my 50th was memorable in every way except for having no party at all.'

Billion-dollar bruisers

Everything about WWF is big, from the wrestlers themselves to their giant pay cheques. Chris Price reports on the TV phenomenon that mixes soap opera with sport

BACK in the 1970s wrestling was a popular, if not mainstream sport. Greats like Giant Haystacks, Big Daddy and Mick McManus grappled earnestly in the ring while old grannies (predominantly) sat at home in front of their TV set every Saturday afternoon waving their handbags at the screen – bashing the baddies from a safe distance. How things have changed. The names may be as daft as ever but even the professional wrestler would admit these days to being more showman (or woman) than sportsman.

Wrestling skills now go hand-in-hand with having a punchy catchphrase and a menacing snarl for the camera. If you thought that Prince Naseem's trademark flip into the ring was fancy you should see these guys. Pyrotechnics, scantily clad women and a specially written theme song are all used to full effect even before the wrestler has climbed into the ring.

Wrestling's dramatic transformation from a sport into a multi-million dollar entertainment business that attracts millions of mainly teenage devotees worldwide is largely down to one man: Vincent Kennedy McMahon. A third-generation promoter of Irish extraction from Connecticut (his father Vincent James ran Capitol Wrestling out of Madison Square Garden with real contests between bad guys, known as 'heels', and good guys or 'babyfaces'), it was Vince Junior who first realised the full glamour potential of wrestling nearly 20 years ago. In 1980 he turned what was then a regional professional wrestling operation into the World Wrestling Federation (WWF).

To McMahon, WWF's success lies in the fact that it's a soap opera rather than a sport. 'World Wrestling Federation TV provides continuing and unique storylines that encourage people to tune in week after week,' he says

'We strive for cutting-edge story lines and their depiction in the most exciting and entertaining way.'

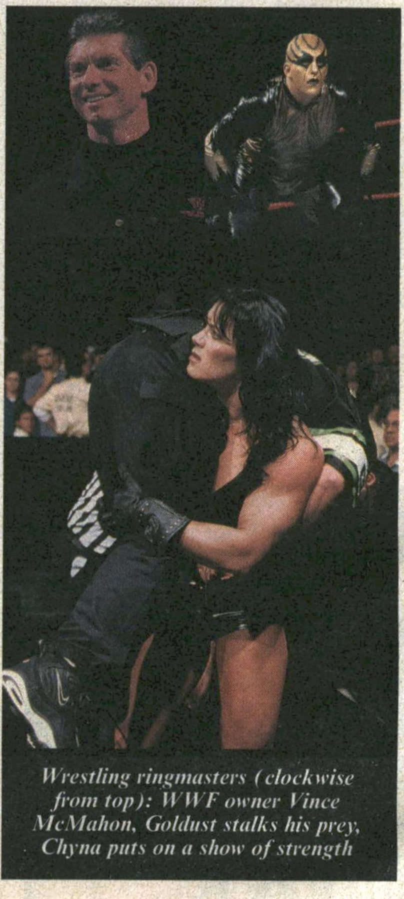
Wrestlers are performers playing up to camera, though they are allowed some creative control over their own characters. You can even see McMahon play an evil caricature of himself on screen.

His on-screen war with WWF's biggest superstar 'Stone Cold' Steve Austin (real name Steve Williams, he invented the name 'Stone Cold' after reading a book about serial killers) made the WWF's Monday Night Raw the number one rated programme on US cable last year.

Other comic-book characters include The Big Show, a 7ft 4in, 500 pound giant of a man who once showed his strength by throwing 'Stone Cold' Steve Austin through a steel cage, and Debra, a stunning female wrestler who fully uses her sexuality to get her own way. To cynics, McMahon may be little more than a showman but there's no denying that it's his vision that has seen the WWF become a billion dollar business.

SKY SPORTS 1

SUMMERSLAM: LIVE, SUNDAY 22ND, 1.00AM



Wrestling ringmasters (clockwise from top): WWF owner Vince McMahon, Goldust stalks his prey, Chyna puts on a show of strength

From his $10 million mirrored corporate HQ in Stamford, Connecticut (its electric blue WWF logo is unmissable), McMahon and his 300 employees, including son and heir Shane McMahon, control every aspect of the WWF business – from organising satellite transmissions and WWF live events through to merchandising and promotions. And what a business it is.

The revenue from merchandising alone topped $1 billion in the US last year, while over here 19,000 devotees recently flocked to the Manchester Arena to watch their brawny heroes in a No Mercy pay-per-view event, spending a further £200,000 on merchandising before they left.

What's more, WWF videos continue to dominate sports and fitness titles with sales up an incredible 75 per cent this year. With figures like these, even wrestling Steve Austin's 1970's TV namesake The Six Million Dollar Man starts to look like a poor relation.

Is it real or is it fake?

To fan Ché Chumber it doesn't matter. He tells us why he can't resist wrestling.

'Many people argue that pro wrestling is staged, but once you watch an episode of Raw Is War, the most intense and electric programme on cable, you will realise that, to wrestling fans, it doesn't matter whether it's staged or not. It's what it brings to the fans that's important – an exciting rush that gets better and better the more you watch. I have followed the WWF for ten years. It always has innovative ideas such as ladder matches, "hell in a cell" and "brawls for all". I try to collect all possible merchandise such as videos, figures, clothing and magazines. I keep all the things in mint condition because they're expected to become collector's items. Wrestling merchandise is everywhere, from caps to mugs, cheque books to dog tags, the list is never-ending. I always watch all live events but my favourite has to be Wrestlemania, because of the wrestlers and celebrities taking part and the incredible matches. Wrestling's popularity has risen dramatically within the last two years because of the most popular wrestler ever – "Stone Cold" Steve Austin, as well as The Rock, The Undertaker, Kane, DeGeneration X, Mankind and Sable, and more in-your-face athletes and valets. Hope you'll enjoy the WWF as much as I do.'

The greatest s

Millions are expected to flock to Cornwall this month to witness the total eclipse of the Sun. Sue Blackhall talks to Patrick Moore about this rare phenomenon

CHRISTOPHER and Anthony Seal blew their savings and travelled halfway around the world to photograph an eclipse – and came back without a single snapshot!

The Essex brothers, both dedicated 'eclipse chasers', trekked to Asia to capture the total blackout of the sun. But while they were waiting for the spectacular event in a dusty northern Indian village, grit got into the works of their expensive camera.

Chris and Tony took a vital 60 seconds clearing it. Unfortunately for them, the eclipse lasted just 50 seconds!

'I admit our language was pretty rich,' says Christopher. 'Our hobby totally eclipses our social life. For months before the India trip in 1995, I had no nights out, no girlfriends – and afterwards, no pictures!'

This year things are looking up for the brothers and all other eclipse chasers who are counting the days till Wednesday, 11 August.

For that is when Britain gets its own eclipse that will black out parts of southwest England – the first time it has happened here for more than 70 years.

A total eclipse is literally the greatest show on Earth and the bonus is it's free!

The amazing phenomenon was once feared as a sign of the anger of the gods. Even now some fanatics predict that this eclipse will mean the end of the world.

But for the rest of us it's simply a fascinating event. The dramatic extent of this eclipse means there'll be extensive TV coverage, including two full days on Discovery Channel, a documentary on National Geographic Channel and special coverage on Sky News. VH1 are even getting into the spirit by playing Bonnie Tyler's epic Total Eclipse of the Heart non-stop for an hour.

Britain's most famous astronomer, the BBC's Patrick Moore, offers some insights into this momentous event.

'I am hoping for clear skies,' says Moore. 'But I'm also praying for clear heads – because watching the event without proper eye protection can literally blind you.''

The eclipse will sweep in from the Atlantic, reaching Land's End shortly after 11.10am. An 80-mile-wide band of Cornwall and south Devon will be totally blacked out for two minutes, four seconds.

The shadow, travelling at 1000 miles an hour, will touch the Channel Isles before disappearing across Europe and parts of Asia. But why does an eclipse occur in the first place?

According to Patrick Moore, it is caused by one of the strangest flukes in the universe.

He explains: 'The sun is 865,000 miles wide, the Earth a mere 8000 miles and the moon a "tiny" 2000 miles, so its diameter is only a 400th that of the sun.

'But here's the strange coincidence – the moon might be 400 times smaller than the sun, but it is 400 times nearer – and so by sheer chance the two bodies appear the same size in the sky.

'That's why occasionally, at the time of a new moon, the moon will blot the sun out for a few minutes, causing a solar eclipse.

'It is a fleeting event and you can't see it from everywhere on Earth. The moon's

With a new series and a blissfully happy marriage, Cheers star Ted Danson is TED DANSON confesses that over the last few years he's taken to watching reruns of Cheers, the hit sitcom in which he played barman Sam Malone. Left to his own devices, he might not have bothered, but his wife, actress Mary Steenburgen, was a big fan of the show even before they met.

'After we were married we'd kind of flick it on and a strange thing happened. I found myself watching it like an ordinary viewer. I thought, "Hey, this is a wonderful show and those people are really funny." But it was those people and not me.

'I look at Sam Malone and I think, "Wow, he's great too." But time has put a real distance between him and me. There's been a parting of the ways.'

In other words, though the show remains a classic, its star has moved on, both professionally and personally. Since the end of Cheers, he's found happiness in his private life and won acclaim in film and TV projects such as Three Men and a Baby, Saving Private Ryan and Gulliver's Travels.

For the last year, he's been hard at work in a new US sitcom, Becker, in which he stars as 'a doctor with absolutely no people skills'.

'He lives alone and when he's not working he goes to the local coffee shop and rants about everything in America that's making him crazy – The Jerry Springer Show, hamburger shadow is only just long enough to reach the Earth, so you have to be in just the right place at just the right time.

'That place just happens to be Cornwall. And shortly after about 11:10 BST on 11 August is the time. Don't miss it!'

An estimated two to three million people will be keen not to miss it as they jam the narrow roads of Cornwall that day. Patrick Moore has a vital warning for them.

'When waiting for the eclipse,' he says, 'the one thing you must not look at directly through any telescope or binoculars is the Sun.

'It's horribly dangerous. It isn't even safe to stare at it directly with the naked eye. Focus the Sun's light and heat onto your eye, and you'll blind yourself permanently.

'There is one rule for looking straight at the Sun – don't. You have only one pair of eyes.'

riding high. Daphne Lockyer talks to him about life after the hit sitcom chains, everything to do with pop culture.

'I used to think he was an angry man, but now I see him as a lonely, lonely guy. He has as much pathos as he has humour. But playing him is great because I get to insult a whole bunch of people without anyone actually popping me in the mouth. It's an enormous amount of fun.'

It's especially fun for the actor who says that his own personality type is the reverse of Becker's. 'I'm someone who is always trying to be charming, always trying to be nice. I struggle with the idea that someone might not like me. At 51, it's become a little trying to be that way, which is why Becker is so liberating to play.'

Despite playing Mr Grumpy, Danson himself remains a hugely affable and charming man. There are hints of Sam Malone in him – a cheeky flirtatiousness, a hilarious line in self-deprecating humour. But more notable are the ways in which he and Sam differ. He thinks deeply about life, he campaigns on ecological issues. He is madly in love with his wife.

'The feelings I have for Mary go almost beyond words,' he says. 'She makes me feel totally and unconditionally loved and she reassures me of that love moment to moment. In a relationship like that, you're free to be yourself and to discover things that you didn't know.'

The couple met relatively late in their lives, in 1993 on set for a film called Pontiac Moon, and were married in October 1995. It wasn't the first time for either of them.

Mary was once married to British actor Malcolm McDowell and has two children, Lily, 18, and Charlie, 16, by him. Ted was married for many years to set designer Casey Coates and they also had two children, Kate, 19, and Alexis, 15. His marriage ended after a much-publicised affair with Whoopi Goldberg.

When that relationship ended, too, Ted sought help through therapy: 'I worked very hard on myself six or seven years ago before I met Mary. I discovered many things, especially that I wanted and needed a relationship where I could love and be loved unconditionally.'

The couple now live in a barn-style house on a 57-acre property in California, and their children remain a hugely important part of their lives. 'That never stops does it? The love and the worry and the struggle. My parents were 75 and I was still bringing them to their knees,' he laughs.

One day, he says, he hopes to reach the point as an actor, a father, a husband and a human being when he can relax and let life meander past him.

'Then it will be, "Here's my book, here's my hammock, here's my tree. Night night."

'But I don't expect that to happen for a long, long while.'

Great

From rebellious punk to TV superstar, Gillian Anderson is not one to be underestimated. As The X-Files movie premieres on Sky Box Office, she talks to Garth Pearce about life beyond Scully

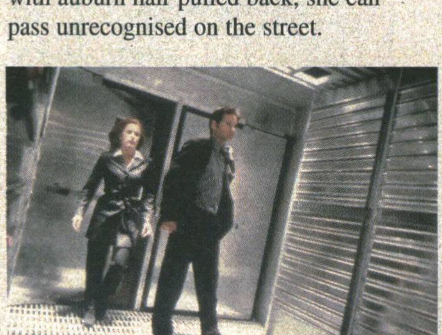
PHOTOS: ALBERT SANCHEZ/CORBIS OUTLINE, BSKYB

GILLIAN ANDERSON is a surprise and she knows it. She is small, neat and pretty when people expect bigger, flashier and more glamorous. But there is a catch – underestimate her at your peril.

Anderson, 31, is currently one of the world's most recognisable women. She is watched by a billion people on television in 70 countries, with The X-Files currently reigning as the most popular series on Earth. She earns around $100,000 an episode. She was reportedly paid a further $4m for The X-Files film, in which her analytical character, Dana Scully, continues to try to bring scientific sense to excitable FBI partner Fox Mulder (David Duchovny) while they investigate alien sightings or the paranormal. And she's frequently been voted The World's Sexiest Woman by readers of leading men's magazines.

There is little outward sign of any such fame or sex appeal as she sits in her suite at London's Dorchester Hotel. Her 5ft 3in figure is dressed in black jacket, with long black skirt; the only jewellery she wears is a thin chain around her neck and an expensive-looking watch in gold and silver.

Anderson is so good at reinventing herself, she is like something metamorphosing from The X-Files itself. On one day, in a particular set of photographs, she can look sensational. On another, scrubbed of make-up and with auburn hair pulled back, she can pass unrecognised on the street.



SKY BOX OFFICE 3

THE X-FILES
FROM WEDNESDAY 4TH

As a teenager, she had a pierced nose, Mohican haircut and a punk rocker boyfriend, though she doesn't like to be reminded of any of them. Now, with her four-year-old daughter Piper, plus nanny, she seems the epitome of motherhood and good sense.

Her spectacular reinvention began six years ago in a film studio on the outskirts of Vancouver, Canada, when The X-Files creator, Chris Carter, was under pressure from financial backers of the new show to cast a Hollywood star, preferably big-breasted and blonde. Instead, he wanted an unknown who could appear sophisticated and intelligent.

Enter Anderson, a struggling actress. Once a rebellious student at DePaul University's Goodman Theatre School, she was able to project herself as one of the brightest, sanest, most accomplished women he'd ever met.

Since then, Anderson's life, Dana Scully and the series itself have been inextricably linked and she has proved that Carter's judgement was spot on. 'I don't need a science degree to act,' she says. 'But I don't know how much Scully and I would have to talk about if we ever met.

'I am spontaneous and she's not. She can live without close personal relationships, where I find that difficult. She is obscenely intelligent. I am not. And she always looks around 5ft 6in tall.'

Underneath Anderson's soft, self-deprecating exterior is a determination and toughness that has helped her survive. She met and married the show's art director, Clyde Kortz, with whom she had her daughter, after a whirlwind romance. Their parting and subsequent divorce led him to leave the series.

Then there was a rumoured relationship with the British actor Adrian Hughes, who played a bit part in The X-Files. Next came Rod Rowland, another actor on the show. After more than a year together, he was allegedly dumped last summer while on a holiday in Bali.

'It has been difficult to find a man who can live with a woman's fame,' she says. 'Men feel a certain responsibility to be the breadwinner and protector; men find it difficult to be in a situation where they are not earning the most. They feel less powerful.

'My experience in recent times is that it makes for an uncomfortable imbalance. I would love to find a man who was completely relaxed with my celebrity and financial situation.

'But when I am working I am not in contact with men in a romantic way. The show is the only way I am going to meet them and become involved and that has happened a few times. It films for nine months a year and takes over my life for virtually every waking moment.

'So, apart from looking after Piper, I have very little energy to pursue a relationship. This is why Hollywood has a celebrity dating system, where one manager can call another manager to arrange for their clients to meet. Have I done it? Not yet.'

She has also tackled another problem with men – the wide discrepancy between the salary of acting partner, David Duchovny, and her own. Duchovny, 39, with ten movies to his name before the launch of The X-Files, was on more than twice her fee.

They are now paid almost equally and she is unapologetic: 'It was fair, to begin with, that there was a difference – but no longer,' she says. 'And the film would not have been made at all, as far as I'm concerned, if we had not been paid absolutely equally.'

There is also a pragmatic view on the relationship with her co-star.

'We work well together and then go our separate ways,' she says. 'We do not socialise, any more than two people at work socialise.

'Sometimes we have a lot of fun together in front of the cameras; at other times, it is a matter of just surviving. I hardly have enough time for my family and real friends, without spending much time in his company. He did not tell me of his marriage in 1997, for example, (to American actress Téa Leoni) and that's just the way things are. He wanted to do it privately and I understand that.'

Anderson completed the sixth series of The X-Files in May – it switched base from Vancouver to Los Angeles for the first time – before travelling to Britain. She has been in Scotland, filming The House of Mirth, an adaptation of Edith Wharton's novel about upper-class New York society in the early 1900s. It co-stars Dan Aykroyd and Laura Linney, who played Jim Carrey's wife in The Truman Show. Gillian plays a successful socialite torn between her heart and her head.

'At last, it gives me a chance to be in a movie without having to play Scully,' she says. 'But I can't say a word against the woman. She has transformed my life.'

And no fan of The X-Files will be disappointed in her polished performance in The X-Files movie. For the legion of followers, key questions are finally answered – including whether aliens are visitors to Earth, or whether they have been here for millions of years.

Scully and Mulder, contrary to speculation from hordes of fans, do not consummate their restrained working relationship – the closest we see is a potential kiss, which dissolves into a pressing of cheeks and a close hug.

Gillian Anderson, reformed rebel, movie star and sophisticated new woman, reflects on her life:

'It is only in moments like now, when I have a chance to step back, that I think: I've had the show, a marriage, pregnancy, baby, divorce, fame and films – all in six years. I wonder: "What does the future hold?"'

Perfect ten: Chris Sutton, Chelsea's new £10m striker, with his manager Gianluca Vialli

Gary Mabbutt and Joe Kinnear tell Cable Guide why the challenge to Manchester United's Premier League title will come from London. By Chris Hatherall

SIR ALEX FERGUSON seemed untouchable as Manchester United won a unique treble last season, but two of the game's shrewdest minds see United's Premier League title being in grave danger of attack from the London-inspired challenge of Arsenal and Chelsea.

Gary Mabbutt, the former England defender and Tottenham captain, still rates United as favourites, but believes we are in for a far from predictable season, while Joe Kinnear, who until his recent departure from Wimbledon was the second longest-serving Premier League manager to Ferguson, thinks it could be all change at the top.

'It will be a fascinating season,' Mabbutt said, 'but I still can't look beyond United, Arsenal and Chelsea for the title. I would go for United, but it will be interesting to see how Arsenal respond without Nicolas Anelka in attack.

'It's also important for Chelsea because they have really spent big this summer. In Chris Sutton [who cost £10m] they finally have a man who is going to score goals consistently. If United come back at all complacent, then Chelsea could be the team to take advantage.

'Leeds could do well, though. They have a team of young players who are one year more experienced than last time. They know how to enjoy themselves and it looks fun for most of them. I think they will be right up there.' Kinnear favours an Arsenal challenge though and added: 'I'm good friends with both Arsène Wenger and Alex Ferguson, so I know how important the title is to both of them. I just think that Arsène may have the edge this time. He has strengthened well, irrespective of the Anelka issue, and it is always harder to defend the title for a second season.

'I just hope we see players at all clubs playing their part in what should be an exciting season. This talk of player power really annoys me and it is time we got a greater sense of loyalty back in the game. We all love individual stars, but this is a game won and lost by teams and that has always been the beauty of it.'

As the rich get richer, both Kinnear and Mabbutt point out that it is becoming increasingly difficult for the chasing clubs to keep up with the top three and that includes the relative muscle of Liverpool, Leeds and Aston Villa.

That is also why they predict a rough ride for newly promoted clubs such as Watford and Bradford. Mabbutt said: 'Watford and Bradford will add some spice to the season, but if you are honest you would have to say that other clubs will be thinking two of the relegation slots are already sorted out.

'It's very nice and sentimental to hear Graham Taylor saying he won't be spending money for the sake of it, but I think he's wrong. My advice would be spend Elton's millions and spend them quick.

'Who goes down with them isn't too difficult to predict, either. It will be between the same old suspects like Southampton and Coventry. Sunderland will do enough to stay up, but Wimbledon could be in trouble this time.'

Kinnear begs to differ. 'Financial clout is vital, but the most important thing is how you spend the money. Even teams like Coventry spend tens of millions these days, but with no guarantees of success. I know the smaller clubs will be glad that Blackburn went down because they will fancy their chances more against the likes of Watford and Bradford. But don't let me hear anyone write off Wimbledon again – even without me at the helm.'

New faces join bhoy's zone

As the Scottish Premier League kicks off, the Old Firm rivalry promises to be as intense as ever. By Nick Callow

CELTIC were left standing in the stalls when their Glasgow rivals Rangers reclaimed the Scottish title last season, their tenth success in 11 years. Celtic paid dearly for their close-season inactivity and, in response, have been the busiest of all clubs this summer with the return of prodigal son Kenny Dalglish and his former Liverpool team-mates John Barnes and Terry McDermott to head their coaching staff.

Rangers, perhaps more interested in Europe this season, have been uncharacteristically quiet, with Dutch striker Michael Mols – bought from FC Utrecht for £4m – their only significant addition to date. The Dalglish factor alone makes Celtic favourites this time.

Only Aberdeen, with new Danish manager Ebbe Skovdahl from Brondby, and Hearts, desperate to make amends for near relegation last season, can realistically expect to challenge at the top.

Newly promoted Hibernian, last season's runaway First Division champions, may contest that view as they bid to make an impact on their return to the top flight with Fulham signing Dirk Lehmann spearheading their attack.

St Johnstone and Kilmarnock were surprise qualifiers for European competition last season and will do well to repeat that feat this year.

Motherwell will also aspire to European qualification with their strike force of Scotland international John Spencer and ex-Wolves man Don Goodman. Manager Billy Davies, new to the role last time out, should also benefit from his year's experience.

So, it leaves old rivals Dundee and Dundee United as favourites to battle it out for survival, with one team perhaps facing relegation at the end of the season.

Pete Sampras is always a threat and Marcelo Rios will be difficult to beat on the Flushing Meadows surface. Flying the flag for Britain are Tim Henman and Greg Rusedski. The resurgent women's game has a plethora of talented youngsters at the height of their powers and the Martina Hingis and Anna Kournikova rivalry is the most intense since the Navratilova/Evert power struggle of the Seventies and early Eighties.

THIS ECO-WARRIOR PACKS REAL FIREPOWER

Brooding hard man Steven Seagal may lack the loose-limbed elegance of Jean-Claude Van Damme, but then the fight scenes in Seagal movies – while always slickly choreographed to showcase his aikido skills – are more about bone-crunching mayhem than balletic grace. This week's premiere of Fire Down Below was a pet project of the ponytailed tough guy, who also produced the film and helped write many of the rocking blues songs heard on its soundtrack. It is reminiscent of Seagal's directorial debut, the eco-action epic On Deadly Ground, in that it blends deftly mounted set-pieces with a serious environmental message. And like that endeavour, which unfolded against the snowscapes of Alaska, this film manages to put a fresh spin on some familiar situations by applying typically urban action stylings to a picture postcard setting. Seagal plays Jack Taggart, a federal agent who is soft of voice and lethal of fist. He poses as a carpenter in a Kentucky mining town to gather evidence about the dumping of toxic waste in the area's abandoned mines. The trail leads to powerful businessman Orin Hanner (Kris Kristofferson), whose heavies, led by his ineffectual son, soon have Taggart marked for death. But the thugs didn't reckon on Taggart's fierce determination and martial arts prowess. Director Felix Enriquez Alcala employs some fancy camerawork and ensures the proceedings hurtle along at a fair zip. But he also allows space amid all the punch-ups and pyrotechnics to develop a sweet relationship between Taggart and a local woman. Sky MovieMax Friday 6th 10.00pm

PARNEVICK SWINGS INTO ACTION

The Volvo Scandinavian Masters, which is now in its ninth year, returns to the Barsebäck Golf and Country Club in Malmö, Sweden, where it was held in 1992, 1995 and 1997. The course is known as the Scandinavian Masters Mix and has the added attraction of a beautiful forest setting. The tournament itself is one of the success stories of the PGA Tour, drawing large crowds and boasting a fine record of winners, including Colin Montgomerie, Peter Baker, Vijay Singh and Lee Westwood. Last year at the Kungsängen Club, Sweden's own Jesper Parnevik (pictured) repeated his success of 1997 when he held off Darren Clarke of Northern Ireland to take first prize. Parnevik, who rates an impressive 15th in the world rankings, will cherish the opportunity to secure a third title in front of the home fans.

THE REAL BLONDE

It is often difficult for modern audiences unfamiliar with the bulk of her film work to think of Marilyn Monroe as anything but a logo; she seems to be firmly fixed in the public consiousness as a pop culture icon with built-in nostalgia value. Over the years since her death, her image, like that of Mickey Mouse, Charlie Chaplin and James Dean, has been repeatedly broken down, distorted, repackaged and parodied – so much so that the impact of the real thing is in danger of being forgotten. The myth of Monroe has been celebrated by everyone from Andy Warhol to Geri Halliwell (who once sang a birthday greeting to Prince Charles in imitation of Monroe's famous breathless address to President Kennedy). But there was always more to the star than peroxide, a pout and a billowing skirt, and when she died on 5 August 1962, aged 36, the film world was robbed of a unique talent. Her raw, untamed sex appeal scorched the screen but she was no predatory femme fatale. She sent male pulses racing, but she also evoked a sweet, childlike innocence and vulnerability that appealed to female cinemagoers. Though she could convince in straight dramatic roles, her real forte was for comedy and she demonstrated impeccable timing in the classics The Seven Year Itch and Some Like It Hot. This Thursday in a Biography programme, The History Channel commemorates the 37th anniversary of Marilyn Monroe's death and goes some way towards explaining the star's enduring popularity.

For the second year running, Manchester United will face Arsenal in the curtain-raiser for the season, the FA Charity Shield at Wembley. But don't expect the result to have much relevance to the rest of the season. Last August, the Gunners easily won 3-0, and yet finished the season without any more honours, while the Reds won the treble. Nicolas Anelka, who scored that day is no longer with the London cub and it will be interesting to see how much he will be missed.

The Midlands has been a hotbed of cricketing success in recent years. Warwickshire and Leicestershire have led the way by mopping up most of the trophies, and tonight they meet in the CGU National League at Edgbaston. This fixture is therefore turning into a crunch match between two leading contenders. Top players on view will include Australian fast bowler Michael Kasprowicz of Leicestershire and his team-mate, class batsman Darren Maddy.

LOVE STARS

BY MARGIE THILLART

AUGUST BIRTHDAYS
7th David Duchovny 9th Melanie Griffith, Gillian Anderson 17th Sean Penn
19th Matthew Perry 31st Richard Gere

Sensational ★★★ Stimulating ★★ Satisfactory ★

Leo
24 July-23 August ★★
MARS persists in playing the role of troublemaker, but by mid-month its impact is softened by Venus. Avoid argumentative people and those who would hurt you, and gravitate instead towards supportive loved ones.

Aquarius
21 January-19 February ★★★
LIFE returns to normal soon after months of indecision or uncertainty. In some cases, a major ambition will be realised, while in others a change of heart is likely to draw you closer to loved ones.

Virgo
24 August-23 September ★★
FRESH faces and new places are forecast for your sign this month. However, to truly benefit from the sociable energy being beamed your way, you must shed our inhibitions and make yourself highly visible.

Pisces
20 February-20 March ★★
WHILE part of you yearns for change, another part longs to hold on to what you already have. Venus plays a tug of war with your heartstrings, making it difficult to make decisions that might threaten your emotional security.

Libra
24 September-23 October ★★
FRANK and forthright discussions are likley to take place, making you feel uneasy. Yours is a genteel sign and normally you baulk at trouble, but differences need to be aired before a relationship can get back on track.

Aries
21 March-20 April ★★★
THE Sun in Leo spurs you into action and emphasises you pioneering spirit. In the weeks ahead, some of you may enter a new romantic or business relationship, while others spend money on their image or appearance.

Scorpio
24 October-22 November ★
WITHOUT even trying, you'll probably put others offside this month. Not only will you manage to being out the worst in certain people, but your own negative traits will be magnified by Mars moving through your sign.

Taurus
21 April-21 May ★★
THERE'S a crackle of tension in the air, but most of your problems will be minor ones. Between now and mid-September, you will have to use extra tact and diplomacy when dealing with friends and family members.

Sagittarius
23 November-22 December ★★★
THE planets are ideally situated to ease personal problems and rekindle romance. Positive developments early in the month will help you turn the corner in a situation that has been troubling you for many months.

Gemini
22 May-21 June ★★★
IF YOU fancy a change of routine or some added excitement, this is the month to take direct action. Sensuous Sun and Venus and spoce to you life in the form of an attractive newcomer or much greater recognition for yourself.

Capricorn
23 December-20 January ★★
YOU may say goodbye to a situation soon, but should think twice before burning your bridges behind you. After a brief fling with someone or something new, it appears regret will make you quickly return to the fold.

Cancer
22 June-23 July ★★
WITH Mars at an agreeable angle, you will be brimming with energy and confidence. Many of you have overcome adversity in the first half of the year and this has produced a positive transformation in your personality.

GAME ON

This week's premiere of Mortal Kombat: Annihilation, the second cinematic rendering of the beat-'em-up computer game, sees our high-kicking hero Liu Kang (martial arts star Robin Shou, who choreographed the thrilling, acrobatic fight sequences) and his cohorts battle to save the world from the dastardly Shao-Kahn (Brian Thompson). It marks the frenetic directorial debut of the first film's cinematographer, John R Leonetti (he relinquishes the camera-slinging chores to brother Matthew), who has deftly harnassed the endearing, tongue-in-cheek approach of the 1995 original, helmed by Paul (Event Horizon) Anderson. His cast respond with enjoyable, pantomimic performances and the every-second-counts plot is invested with all the chaotic energy of the game, urged along by some adrenaline-charged editing.

TOFFEES FOR SIR ALEX

It came as no surprise when Sky Sports announced it would kick off its Premier League coverage with a fixture featuring treble-winning titans Manchester United, who take on Everton this Sunday. The Red Devils' trail-blazing 1998-99 campaign was the stuff of legend and saw them claim the sport's most prestigious titles: the Premier League Cup, the FA Cup and the European Cup. While the FA trophy is not an option for the side this season – the club controversially opted out of the competition in order to take part in January's World Team Championships – there's still a possibility the players could be daunted at the prospect of trying to live up to their own monumental achievements. And will United miss the reassuring presence of the talismanic Peter Schmeichel, who has been replaced between the sticks by Mark Bosnich? The home side, meanwhile, must surely be tired of being the perennial Premiership escape artists. Kevin Campbell, last season's loan star striker, drove home nine goals in his eight appearances for Everton, helping to haul them out of the relegation zone. But apart from a dramatic reversal in fortune that saw the Merseysiders rise from the bottom-half of the table and start to notch up some big wins, it remained, overall, another mediocre season for the side, who finished 14th. Such players as local hero Francis Jeffers (pictured) will no doubt be anxious to prove that there's more to The Toffees than a talent for extricating themselves from late-season tight spots.

LAVA ON A MOUNTAIN TOP

This week's National Geographic Channel programme Volcano! doesn't need to draw upon the computer-enhanced effects used on such disaster epics as Dante's Peak to convey the devastating force of the volcano. The programme complements the astonishing accounts of intrepid vulcanologists, who have descended into the craters of active peaks as part of their research, with powerful footage that captures the violent, turbulent splendour of erupting volcanoes. Stanley Williams, one of the foremost experts on Central and South American volcanoes, recounts the terrifying experience of having one explode beneath him in Galeras in Southern Colombia. The documentary also includes haunting, rarely seen images of the aftermath of the 1902 eruption of Mount Pelee in Martinique, which holds the unholy distinction of having claimed the highest number of casualties – an astonishing 29,000.

LIVE SOUTH AFRICA V NEW ZEALAND SKY SPORTS 3 3.30PM

When these two sides meet today, South Africa will still be smarting from the record defeat of 28-0 which New Zealand inflicted upon them in their Tri-Nations match in Dunedin last month. It was the first time that the Springboks had failed to score against the All Blacks in 34 years. Full-back Christian Cullen who was one of the try scorers is likely to be a key man for the All Blacks in this encounter too. Once again New Zealand are the team to beat.

Oh, how Everton fans long for a return of the good old days. The Toffees entertain treble-winners Manchester United today at Goodison Park with perhaps only the faintest hope of victory, but who knows what the new season will bring? Thanks to a late burst towards the end of last season Walter Smith's men managed to pull off another great escape and avoid relegation. But their final 14th place spot hardly satisfied their fans who will rightly demand an improvement.

LIVE FA PREMIER LEAGUE: DERBY V ARSENAL SKY SPORTS 1 7.00PM

Derby manager Jim Smith is one of the best exponents of building an effective team on a budget, mixing talented foreign, such as the Italian Francesco Baiano with home-grown talent. The test comes when teams like Arsenal come to Pride Park, as they do tonight. Smith needs his team to believe that they can shackle the likes of Dennis Bergkamp and Emmanuel Petit and score past a defence marshalled by Tony Adams. If not, then Arsène Wenger will be celebrating again.

Nominated for Favourite Disney Toon Character, along with Buzz Lightyear, Flik, Goofy and Pepper Ann, is Disney's Doug. It would obviously be fun to win!' You can catch Disney's Doug every day at 10.00am on Disney Channel, and Doug's 1st Movie is released in UK cinemas on Friday 6th.

LIVE FORD GOLF USA: US PGA CHAMPIONSHIP
SKY SPORTS 2 5.30PM

Both American majors this year have been gripping affairs and the multi-million dollar 81st US PGA Championship, which starts today, is likely to make it a hat-trick. Played on the undulating fairways and marble greens of the Medinah Country Club in Illinois, Fijian Vijay Singh will defend his title against a host of home talent led by David Duval and Tiger Woods. A European has never won this tournament, and there seems little chance of a change in that unfortunate record.

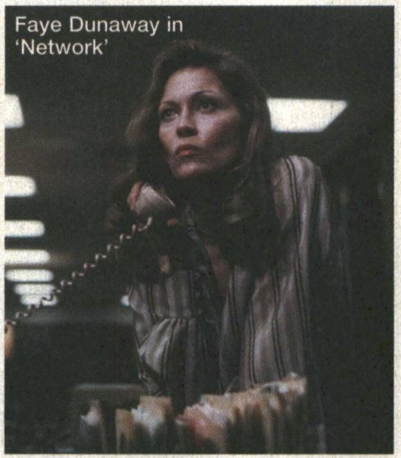
TV INTERFERENCE ON FILMFOUR

The motion picture industry was almost killed off in the Fifties by the unexpected success of television, a format that short-sighted studio bosses dismissed as gimmicky. It's hardly surprising, then, that cinema has not always been kind in its depictions of its precocious small-screen cousin. This week, FilmFour lays on a season of movies all of which deal with television from the same savagely satirical perspective.

The sharply witty Network (Wednesday 18th 10.00pm) spoofs the absurd lengths fickle TV companies will go to in search of viewing figures. News anchorman Peter Finch launches into an on-air tirade after being sacked because his ratings have slumped. He immediately becomes a cult hero and the channel, smelling a potential smash hit, begins to promote this troubled man as a 'mad prophet of the airwaves'. Finch is faultless in his final film role and was awarded a posthumous Oscar. Statuettes also went to Faye Dunaway (right), supporting actress Beatrice Straight and Paddy Chayefsky for his biting screenplay.

Public Access (Thursday 19th 12.05am) is the intriguing debut feature of Bryan Singer, the director of the deviously plotted crime masterpiece The Usual Suspects. Whereas that film was propelled along by urgent editing and dynamic, designer camerawork, the pacing of this rarely revived early effort is nothing less than languid, with Singer allowing scenes where nothing much happens to mysteriously meander on. But that's all part of his plan: Singer's slow-burning style works its hypnotic spell, viewers drop their guard, then, around the 60-minute mark, he slugs them with a shockingly violent outburst. Ron Marquette strikes an enigmatic chord in the lead, with his handsome but impassive features and unsettling monotone. He plays a stranger who arrives in the sleepy town of Brewster seemingly intent on destroying its air of suburban serenity. The clean-cut Marquette immediately awakens the locals' ill-feelings for one another and uncovers corruption at mayoral level when he starts his own cable TV talk show, Our Town. The film plays rather like an over-extended short but it has an oddly unsettling atmosphere that lingers long after the closing credits.



Faye Dunaway in 'Network'

The week's selection ends on a deeply disturbing note with the Belgian movie Man Bites Dog (Friday 20th 12.15am), a cruelly comic send-up of sensationalist documentaries. This controversial monochrome offering, in which a killer allows a film crew to record his graphically grisly handiwork, is a movie of visceral power; it couches some angry statements about the media in perversely funny terms and its unadorned, fly-on-the-wall style gives it a shocking immediacy.

The season concludes next Saturday with the darkly comic Jim Carrey vehicle The Cable Guy.

TV Hell Season FilmFour from Wednesday 18th 10.00pm

HEADINGLEY'S PRIZE ROSES

It may be over 500 years since the War of the Roses ended, with the Yorkists yielding to the Lancastrians, but this week's clash between the two counties' fiercely competitive cricket sides will prove how old rivalries endure. Charles Colvile will be anticipating an exciting feast of bowling and stroke play, as he takes his place beneath the floodlights in the commentary box at Headingley, in this deliciously balanced clash of two of English cricket's most aggressive sporting adversaries. Yorkshire Phoenix, under the captaincy of David Byas, have cut quite a dash in the opening months of the season, soaring to the top of the CGU National League, with a squad boasting the likes of Darren Gough and Australian Test star Greg Blewett. Lancashire, by comparison, have failed to build on their NatWest Trophy-winning form of the 1998 season, and have so far found the going tough. However, never was there a better time to rediscover one's form than against the old foe – and the Red Rose county's England contingent will be determined to stamp out any flames that this particular Phoenix may attempt to rise from. With Michael Atherton, Neil Fairbrother (pictured) and captain John Crawley demonstrating the depth of international quality at the club, highly regarded young all-rounders such as Andrew Flintoff have been gaining plenty of attention for their precocious talent. Always full-blooded and entertaining, this is a match that's sure to thrill.

LIVE TRI-NATIONS: SOUTH AFRICA V AUSTRALIA SKY SPORTS 3 4.00PM

With New Zealand in such excellent form – as exemplified by last month's 28-0 thrashing of South Africa – this clash may decide which of these two sides will occupy the runners-up spot in this year's Tri-Nations. But when the Springboks take on the Wallabies, neither team will want to contemplate defeat, especially the Boks in front of their vociferous home fans at the Newlands Stadium in Cape Town.
Key players could well be South African Percy Montgomery and George Gregan of Australia.

LIVE SOUTHAMPTON V NEWCASTLE UNITED SKY SPORTS 1 3.00PM

Perhaps Southampton should start playing in August the way they normally play in April and May. Too often, the Saints start poorly and leave themselves a tall task to climb to safety. Last season they left it all to the final weeks to save their Premier League skins. Against Newcastle United at The Dell, their manager David Jones will be firing up the likes of Matt Le Tissier. While Newcastle United's long-suffering fans will hope that their trip to the south coast isn't a wasted journey.

THE BIG CHEESE

Tune into Crazy about Cheese on Carlton Food Network to find out all you ever wanted to know about cheese but were afraid to ask … Juliet Harbutt, one of the UK's foremost experts on cheese, will be presenting a 13-part series on the subject that'll explore how to choose, present and cook with cheese – as well as looking at its extraordinary history throughout the ages. Mondays from 9th, 12.30pm; see listings for repeats

CHEESY WOTSITS

Legend has it that cheese was discovered by an Arab nomad travelling across the desert by horse with saddlebags full of milk. After several hours, he stopped to quench his thirst, but when he drank from the saddlebag the milk had separated into a pale liquid and solid white lumps – thus cheese was born. And the reason? The saddlebag was made from the stomach of a young animal, containing a coagulating enzyme known as rennin; the milk had been separated into curds by the combination of the rennin, the sun and the galloping of the horse.

SCI-FI ZONE

Your guide to out-of-this-world shows on cable. WORDS PATRICK HOLM

Stars of The Net (l-r): Joseph Bottoms, Mackenzie Gray, Kelli Taylor and Brooke Langton

Caught in the net

In this electronic age, how can we prove we are who we say we are? Our names are recorded everywhere on computers, but what if someone was able to hack into those computers and change someone's identity? Maybe, instead of a normal working girl, a woman's identity was changed into that of a wanted criminal. That's the basis of the 1995 film The Net, now adapted for TV. Melrose Place's Brooke Langton replaces Sandra Bullock as Angela Bassett, who goes on the run when her life is changed after she accidentally receives an e-mail that alerts her to the activities of a shadowy organisation called the Praetorian Guards. Her flight is aided by the mysterious Sorcerer, whom she can only talk to via her computer (and whose identity is quite a shock when it's eventually revealed), but hindered by the fact that the Praetorians have killed her best friend and framed her for the murder. They have some devious schemes lined up, not just for capturing Angela, but for dominating the world. These range from a black market in human organ transplants to causing economic chaos on the financial markets. They assign Agent Trelawney (Joseph Bottoms) to try to contain Angela, but so far with little luck. The Net is one of the many shows filming in Vancouver and its combination of computers and The Fugitive-like storylines has given it a solid fan audience.

Sci-Fi, Sundays 10.00pm, Wednesdays 8.00pm

FUTURE WATCH

Although The Legendary Journeys has been cancelled (eight episodes make up its final season), Herc fans need not worry – Kevin Sorbo will be back on screen very soon. He's currently deciding between two sci-fi shows, both based on 'lost' ideas by Star Trek's creator Gene Roddenberry. He could either be playing scientist Alexander Grange, transported 500 years into the future Buck Rogers-style in Andromeda, or Captain Dylan Hunt, the leader of a team of interplanetary explorers and troubleshooters in Starship. Watch this space ...

TIME MACHINE

THE TWILIGHT ZONE

1959-1964, 1985-1988. Guest stars include: Bruce Willis, Jenny Agutter, Wes Craven, Morgan Freeman, Helen Mirren, Gina Gershon, Frances McDormand.

'There is a fifth dimension beyond what is known to man. It is a dimension as vast as space and as timeless as infinity ... It is an area which we call The Twilight Zone ...' Blessed with one of the spookiest theme tunes ever created for a science fiction show (the original version of Doctor Who being its only rival), this anthology series has survived in many different forms stretching back 40 years to 2 October 1959. Originally hosted by its creator Rod Serling, at their best these short tales (mostly around half an hour in length) challenge the viewer and hopefully make them think about the moral message that is at their heart. After 164 black-and-white episodes the show was cancelled, but revived on the big screen in 1981. This led to a further television revival which brought many of the world's top science fiction writers to the table from 1985 to 1988, and yet another revival in the mid-Nineties.

ICE COLD IN CONNECTICUT

After recreating 18th-century England with such frothy exuberance in his rendering of Jane Austen's Sense and Sensibility, Taiwanese-born director Ang Lee turns his artful attentions to a very different source novel – Rick Moody's The Ice Storm, a thought-provoking work from 1994 that analysed the breakdown of the family unit in the cynical and promiscuous Seventies. Lee's melancholic film adaptation, which takes place in an affluent suburb of Connecticut and brilliantly conveys the general feeling of disillusionment prevalent in Watergate-era America, focuses on two families that are connected by an extra-marital affair. It's Thanksgiving, 1973, and 16-year-old student Paul Hood (Tobey Maguire) is going home for the holidays. His father, Ben (Kevin Kline), is a shallow executive who regularly visits the house of the bored Janey Carver (Sigourney Weaver) for afternoons of unrewarding sex. Paul's mother, Elena (Joan Allen), is suspicious and consequently there is an icy atmosphere in the Hood household. Meanwhile, his sassy, 14-year-old sister, Wendy (Christina Ricci), is seeing Janey Carver's oldest son Mikey (Elijah Wood) but finds herself drawn to Mikey's kid brother, Sandy (Adam Hann-Byrd). The Ice Storm is a haunting film that explores its characters' complex emotions with great skill. The performers are uniformly excellent – though Maguire and Ricci deserve particular praise – and work wonders in interpreting an enigmatic and reflective script in which so much remains unspoken. The film, which was adapted from Moody's novel by James Schamus, has a deceptively episodic structure; it is an observational, character-driven piece, and at first it seems as if there is no grand scheme to the skilfully scripted vignettes that involve and affect different characters. But it soon becomes clear that events are hurtling inexorably towards the night of the symbolic storm of the title. It's a night that will yield disappointment, uncomfortable truths and tragedy but it will also offer, in the achingly poignant closing shot, a glimmer of hope that the Hood family can arrest the lack of communication that is destroying it.

RAFTER CHASES THE AMERICAN DREAM

Patrick Rafter (pictured) will be aiming for a hat-trick of wins at the US Open at Flushing Meadows, New York. This, the final grand slam event of the year, is the world's richest tournament, with $12m in prize money at stake. The Australian world number two has an affable persona which belies an explosive style of play, which saw him through to the semi-final at Wimbledon this year. In last year's final, Rafter blew away his compatriot Mark Philippoussis in four sets, while in 1997 he overpowered Britain's Greg Rusedski in another battle of the big-servers, again in four sets. These back-to-back victories meant that the 26-year-old became only the sixth player in modern times to win the title twice in a row. But winning the US Open for a third consecutive time would be an immense achievement, as only two other players have managed it since the war – John McEnroe and Ivan Lendl. Standing in Rafter's way will be world number one Andre Agassi, Wimbledon winner Pete Sampras and Britain's own Tim Henman and Rusedski. In the women's event, new Wimbledon champion Lindsay Davenport would love to repeat her triumph of last year, when she beat defending champion and the then world number one Martina Hingis in straight sets to became the first American-born woman to win the Open since Chris Evert in 1982.

FILM

The Postman
Sky Premier 8.00pm
For his second film as actor-director, Kevin Costner borrows elements from his first, the revisionist Western Dances with Wolves, and combines them with the post-apocalyptic sci-fi stylings of Waterworld. Set in 2013, this premiere sees him as the unwilling hero of the title.

GENERAL

Lee & Herring Live
Paramount Comedy Channel 10.00pm
Lee and Herring have grown into huge stars following hit series such as This Morning with Richard Not Judy and Fist of Fun. This half-hour special, recorded during their 1995 sell-out tour of the UK, captures perfectly the daft but sparkling rapport that has won them so many fans.

It's the big one – Arsenal against Manchester United. The recent battles between England's top two teams have been modern-day classics which have gone some way to decide both the Premier League and the FA Cup. The skills of Marc Overmars have unlocked United's defence before now, but not since Jaap Stam has commanded the centre. It'll be cagey with neither Arsène Wenger or Alex Ferguson willing to lose to their major rival so early in the season, so goals might be scarce.

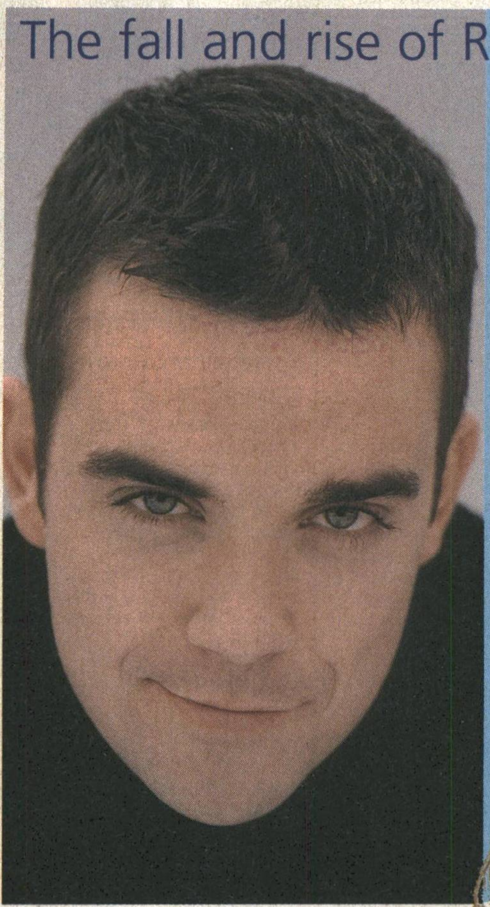
The fall and rise of Robbie Williams



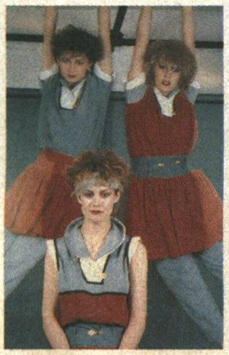
Two years ago, life after Take That looked a little dodgy for Robbie Williams. His debut album Life Thru a Lens had sold only 40,000 copies and his nemesis, Gary Barlow, had beaten him in the battle to be the first ex-Take That-er to grab a solo UK number one. Then Robbie's record company released the single Angels and everything changed. Today Williams' career is still on the up and as the millennium approaches he is making his mark as a global icon thanks to talent, a larger-than-life personality and his love life. A bevy of babes lie in his wake, Andrea Corr, Nicole from All Saints, Anna Friel, even Madonna (allegedly). MTV now devotes a day to the man and his ego. Tune in to watch his vidoes, a documentary and Robbie hosting the MTV Europe Music Awards.

MTV, Thursday 5th

ONES TO WATCH … On 11 August the United Kingdom will be experiencing something that won't be happening again until well into the next century. To celebrate the Sun's total eclipse, VH1 will be devoting a day to the best celestial music around. And from 11am to 12noon, the exact moment of the eclipse will be marked with an entire hour of Bonnie Tyler singing the classic Total Eclipse of the Heart … If you can't make it to V99 this year then enjoy MTV's trip to the event – they'll be covering not just this year's line up (with an appearance from the godfather of soul, James Brown) but last year's too (week beginning Monday 9th, Saturday 28th, Sunday 29th).

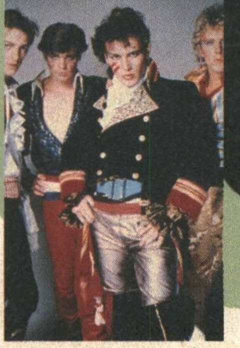
BYE BYE BABY

In the Seventies, every teenager's wardrobe took a turn for the worse and tartan reigned supreme. Rollermania gripped the nation and five lads from Edinburgh – Les, Woody, Eric, Alan and Derek – trimmed their trousers and shirt cuffs in tartan, knotted chequered scarves round their Adam's apples and danced as though their joints needed oiling. As a tribute to this tartan tidal wave, VH1 look behind the music of the Bay City Rollers (Sunday 8th, 9.00pm) – the money disputes, the stage fights, the girls, the champagne – in a fascinating documentary. Meanwhile, here are three more pop sensations who, like The Rollers, created more than a ripple in the fashion world …



Who could forget the ra-ra skirt? A ruched valance of a thing worn most attractively by that tousled trio, Bananarama

Boy George, the chameleon of pop, always was a bit of a mish mash of styles: mad hats, beaded rag rug hair, lurid make-up, shaved bits and bobs, caftans … we could go on



Adam led his coiffured warrior ants in style: daubed in war paint, shimmery bronzer, and mascara and kitted out in alarming pirate shirts with leg 'o' mutton sleeves

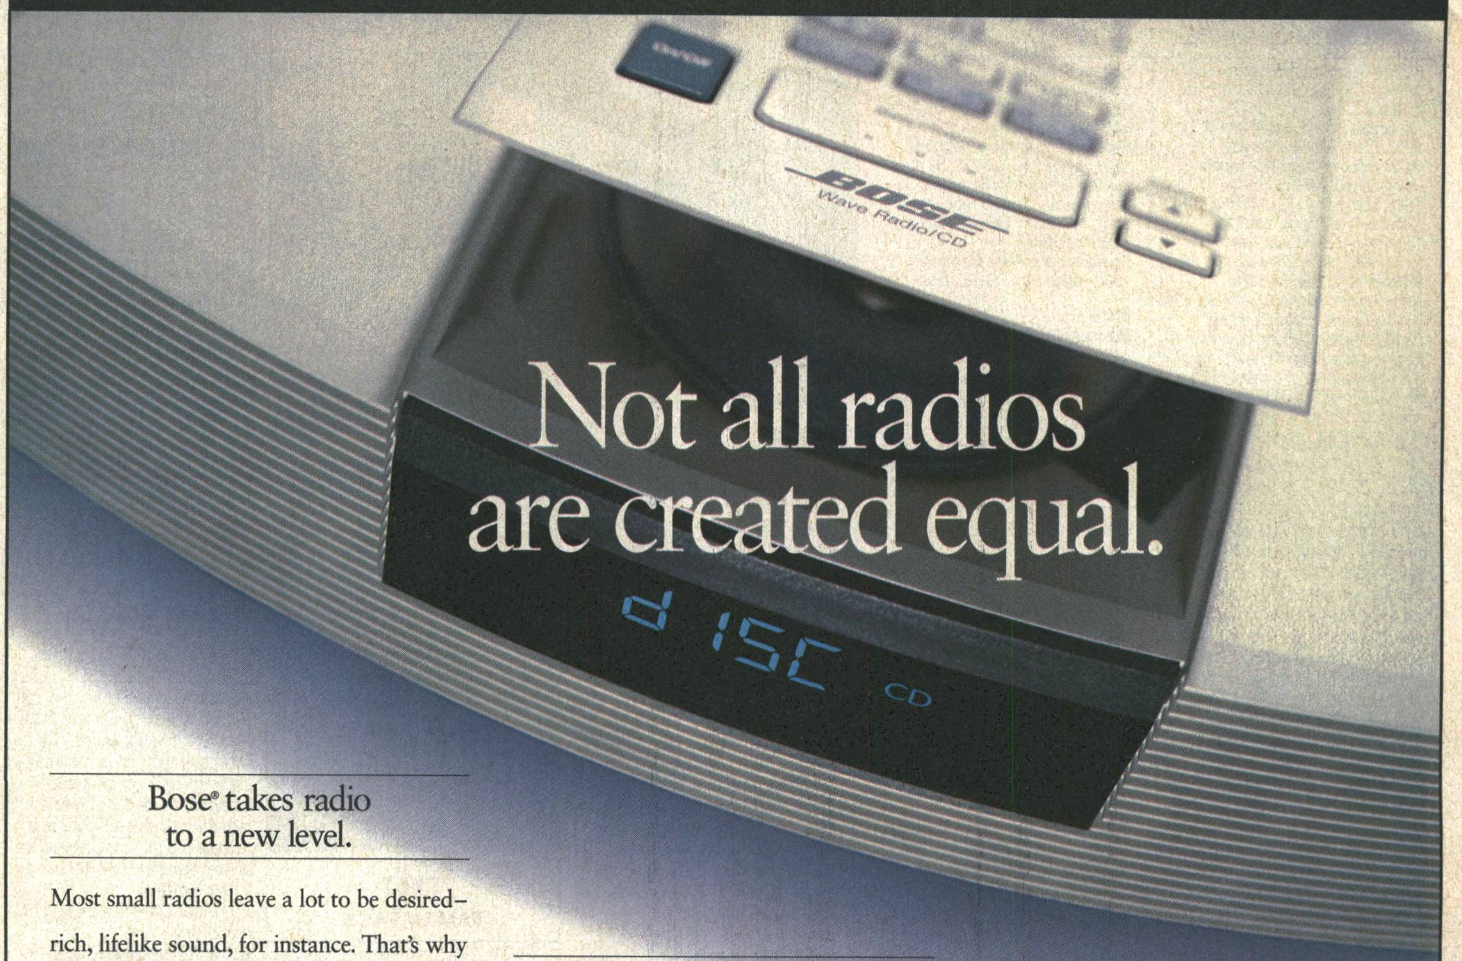
Introducing the New Wave® Radio/CD

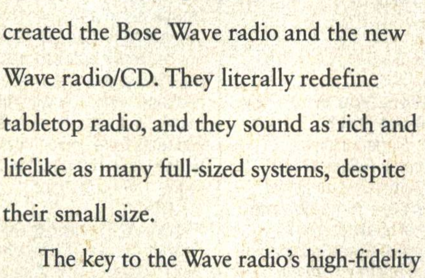


Not all radios are created equal.

Bose® takes radio to a new level.

Most small radios leave a lot to be desired–rich, lifelike sound, for instance. That's why Bose, the most respected name in sound, created the Bose Wave radio and the new Wave radio/CD. They literally redefine tabletop radio, and they sound as rich and lifelike as many full-sized systems, despite their small size.

The key to the Wave radio's high-fidelity sound is our patented acoustic waveguide speaker technology. Just as a flute strengthens a breath of air to fill an entire concert hall, the waveguide produces room-filling sound from the Wave radio's small enclosure. The result, according to Radio World, is "a genuine breakthrough in improved sound quality."



Introducing the Wave radio/CD.

The Wave radio/CD produces the same breakthrough sound–sound that resonates with incredible, lifelike bass.

The Wave radio and the Wave radio/CD come with a handy credit card-sized remote control, dual alarms, and six AM and six FM station pre-set buttons. In addition, the Wave radio/CD remote lets you control all CD functions.

And the Wave radio/CD measures just 4⅜″H × 14″W × 8½″D, so it fits almost anywhere.

Call today, your satisfaction is guaranteed.

The Wave radio/CD is available directly from Bose.

So call 0800 022 044 to learn more about our 30 day in-home trial and 100% satisfaction guarantee.

When you call, be sure to ask about our convenient interest-free payment plan.

If you love music, call today. Because you haven't truly heard radio until you've heard the Bose Wave radio and Wave radio/CD.

LIVE ENGLAND V CANADA SKY SPORTS 2 6.00PM

Every match is crucial in the build up to the Rugby World Cup, and tonight's England match against Canada at the Madejski Stadium, Reading, will be analysed every which way. Captain Martin Johnson and his forwards should overwhelm the North Americans, which leaves the backs like Matt Perry to exploit the openings. For Canada, fly half Gareth Rees still leads the line and could use his experience to make things difficult for the home side.

LIVE LEICESTER CITY V WATFORD SKY SPORTS 1 7.00PM

Football is mostly about players, but managers like Graham Taylor and Martin O'Neill just can't help but take centre stage every now and then. Both have achieved the almost impossible – Taylor taking a team of Watford journeymen to the top flight for a second time and O'Neill assuring Leicester's Premier League status with limited means. After much doubt over his future, O'Neill has agreed to stay at Filbert Street until 2002. While, Leicester striker Tony Cottee is still scoring goals into his mid-thirties.

An Amazing Natural Food Extract That Could

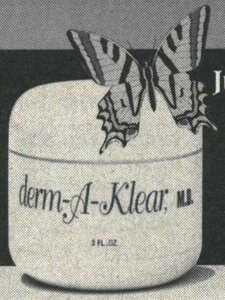
SHRINK AWAY THREAD VEINS

For Good – In Just Weeks!

Simply Rub Them Away – With This "Doctor's" Healing Cream!

RUB ON IN MINUTES – SEE UGLY THREAD VEINS START TO SHRINK, FADE, DISAPPEAR IN DAYS!

1 OVER MILLION SOLD IN USA



Just apply "doctor's" new wonder formula and thread veins SHRINK SHRINK SHRINK AWAY FOR GOOD In Just Weeks!

AFTER

For years they have been one of the most difficult to solve cosmetic mysteries. Thread Veins – those webs of fine red and blue lines that cluster on your legs, thighs and even your face. Those horrid crimson 'starbursts' that compel you to wear extra heavy makeup, (in a desperate attempt to mask them) – or often, to resort to trousers or long skirts, to hide them from the world. Not to mention the embarrassment you're forced to endure every time you put on a bathing suit or pair of shorts.

Most distressing of all, until now, the only answer to your problem was either plastic surgery or a long and expensive series of injections! BUT NOT ANY LONGER!

NOW COMES THE "DOCTOR'S" TREATMENT YOU CAN APPLY AT HOME

You see, recently in the United States it was discovered that when natural food extracts rich in vitamin A were combined with heavily concentrated Vitamin K (the same wonder-formula used by plastic surgeons to deter post-operative scarring) – and applied it directly to the skin, it had a remarkable effect on the network of tiny blood vessels that flare up just beneath the surface, (those insidious 'thread veins'). Even more remarkable, it was found that this wonder formula didn't merely work on existing thread veins, but actually helped them from spreading out again, solving your problem ONCE AND FOR ALL! It soon replaced injections and surgery and became the standard product for this nasty problem in the States.

Now, this wondrous new vitamin A and K 'shrink away' formula, 'dermA-Klear/M.D.'

NOW AVAILABLE TO THE UK PUBLIC

is being released to the general public here in the United Kingdom. Which simply means you now have in your hands the solution to this most vexing, appearance-destroying problem. And it's so simple to use.

Just apply 'derm-A-Klear/M.D.' twice daily to any problem area. You should see the results within two weeks. That is all there is to it – your problem is over, and without plastic surgery or expensive injections.

TRY IT FOR 30 DAYS AT OUR EXPENSE, RISK-FREE

Send for 'derm-A-Klear/M.D.' today. When it arrives apply as directed to any embarrassing thread veins...then watch a miracle happen before your very eyes. If you are not completely satisfied by the results, simply return the unused portion of 'derm-A-Klear/M.D.' for a full purchase price refund. You risk nothing, have nothing to lose and a perfectly, blemish-free skin to gain. So, why suffer another embarrassing moment. Take advantage of this NO-RISK opportunity, mail the 30-day trial coupon TODAY!

Helps to block the pathway to pain

Transcutaneous Electrical Nerve Stimulation (TeNS) control of pain relies on the "gate theory" first put forward in the 1950's by British neuroanatomist Patrick Wall and Canadian psycho physiologist Ronald Melzack. Following 10 years of research Wall and Melzack concluded that one type of nerve fibre carries the "hurt" or pain message to the brain, while a second thicker type of nerve fibre is capable of acting in a contradictory way by blocking out (or erecting a gate to) the "hurt" signal, thereby preventing its transmission to the brain.

Research studies show that TeNS produces an intense stimulation which activates an area of the brain which, in turn, inhibits the pathways that transmit pain signals. Although it is not a cure, TeNS is now accepted by the medical profession as being of significant benefit to many in controlling most kinds of physical pain, and is now employed with increasing success in NHS Hospitals and Clinics throughout the UK.

When pain cuts like a knife

For the countless millions suffering pain due to sports injuries, muscle strains, joint problems, period pains or other causes, the TeNS approach to pain management and control offers an ideal, non-invasive, drug free approach to living a normal life.

TeNS has a remarkably wide range of applications: Neck ● Spine ● Waist ● Shoulders ● Elbows ● Wrists ● Hips ● Knees ● Ankles ● Feet

While it is important to stress that TeNS is not suitable for everyone (specifically those who suffer heart disease or who have a pacemaker fitted) TeNS has proved beneficial in alleviating pain for the vast majority of users.

Shire Design are one of the largest manufacturers of TeNS units in Europe and are at the forefront of research and development. Shire TeNS have a range of competitively priced (£50 to £100), easy to use, discreet, compact home units to suit every pocket and situation. Shire TeNS units are supplied to and used by Hospitals and Clinics.

These are genuine extracts from letter received from Shire Design customers. The originals are available for inspection in their offices, along with many others.

"I annually award my own New Year honour to the best thing that has happened to me during the previous year and without a shadow of doubt I award this to your magnificent TeNS apparatus for the outstanding – not to say "UP-STANDING" – improvement it has made to my life."

N. Richards, Merseyside.

"Reference the Sigma machine I purchased from you some time ago, I am pleased to say it has given me so much pain relief that I am now able to walk about, and cover several miles."

R. Whitton, Northampton.

"It works, it really works. When it arrived, I took one look at it and thought, what a waste of time. After 3 days I tried it out and it has transformed my life."

L.J. Davidson, Worcester.

"I am writing to let you know how delighted I am with my Sigma TeNS it has brought me great relief and I do not have to take pain tablets any more I just use my TeNS."

J.W. Whalley, Lancs.

Shire SIGMA has two independently controlled outputs for treating those large areas of pain, or alternatively treat two completely different areas at the same time, choosing exactly the right level of stimulation for each. Shire SIGMA has 3 different types of computer controlled stimulation to suit all your needs – (1) Massage (2) Pulsing (3) Continuous.

Ergonomically styled with sturdy clothing clip, a cable grip to prevent accidental disconnection as well as large rotary controls Shire SIGMA offers the relief you require and performance you expect from Shire TeNS.

BEWILDERED BY BUFFY

When Buffy the Vampire Slayer ended on Sky One last year I was devastated. When I discovered that there were six more episodes in the season to be aired I was annoyed. I found myself thinking: 'Would six more hours really have made much difference?' Obviously, Sky One thought so. When I heard Buffy was due back on Sky One in June I was over the moon. Now I am devastated again. Why did Sky One decide to repeat half of season two again? Buffy fans have been waiting since July 1998, not to see repeats, but to see the last six episodes of season two and possibly season three. This is driving many Buffy fans insane!

Lucy, a Buffy fan
e-mail

I've been a big fan of Buffy the Vampire Slayer ever since it first started on Sky One. I was extremely disappointed when Sky removed the series from its regular Saturday night slot before the end of season two. Imagine how pleased I was when I saw that a 'brand new series' of Buffy was advertised in the Next Month section of May's Cable Guide. Then imagine my further disappointment when I found out that in fact Sky were repeating the last six episodes that were previously shown. I had to wait another six weeks for the 'new' episodes promised. Was this intentional, so the viewers could be reminded of what had gone before?

Nik Barnes
e-mail

● Sky One replies: 'We've been looking for a suitable time slot in which to place* Buffy the Vampire Slayer *to maximise its appeal and build upon interest created by the screening of the show on BBC2. We decided to continue the series from where BBC2 left off, with new episodes from the second season being shown before season three starts on 20 August.'

LATE START-ER

Timing was never one of my strong points, as proved by the fact that I discovered a fantastic TV programme just as it ended its current run. I was told by friends that ER (Sky One) was gripping and utterly unmissable – having tried watching it for myself, I'm totally hooked! As someone who turns away from the screen whenever operations – simulated or real – are shown on TV, I'm shocked to find I actually enjoy every minute of ER. I told all the established ER addicts about my conversion and they laughed, telling me the latest series had ended. But I get the last laugh since I can still catch up on some of the old episodes I missed out on first time round!

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

Do you know if Carlton are going to show the remaining episodes of A Country Practice? It is one of my favourite programmes and I would like to see it to the end.

Carol Elliott
e-mail

● Sorry, Carol, Carlton Select say they have no plans to show* A Country Practice *again.

BROOKS & PLENTY

I would like to know why there are hardly any Garth Brooks videos played on the music channels, even though he is one of the biggest selling artists of all time. I have heard there is a VH1 Storytellers programme about him, but I have never seen it advertised. I think it would be a good idea to have a Garth Brooks Day, like other artists have had, or a Ten of The Best or Greatest Hits of ... I know he's country music, so people think his songs are going to be full of 'Yee-Haw' and 'Ride 'em cowboy', but if they listen to his music they'll see it's completely different. So please, please play more Garth!

Chris Ayers
e-mail

● VH1 replies: 'VH1 are firm fans of Garth Brooks and appreciate there is a big audience for his music and other country artists too.* Storytellers – Garth Brooks, *a programme made in the USA, has not been licensed for broadcast in the UK, and there is not yet enough video material to be able to produce a Garth Brooks Day. We remain firmly committed to country music, with 'Mark Hagan's VH1 Country', and country music played throughout our regular playlist. As soon as Garth Brooks releases some new material, you can be sure to see it on VH1.'

MARRIAGE OF MINDS

I have recently married and have found this state to be unusual beyond my wildest expectations. I thought I was alone in my circumstance until I saw Mad About You on Paramount Comedy Channel. This show must be the most accurate portrayal of modern married life I've ever seen. Like Paul Buchman, I know how difficult it is trying to organise the perfect birthday surprise for your wife – of course she's always one step ahead and inadvertently ends up organising it herself. Not to mention the difficulty of trying to assure her that I still love her in the red dress as much as in the black dress and maybe even more in the blue, (if, of course, it were possible to love her more!), and that the Sunday dinner she's spent six hours cooking is just like my mother's, even down to the roast potatoes that are strangely welded to the baking tray. Life before her may have been easy, but life with her is so much more fun. I guess these are the things we do for love. Mad About You says it all!

Mr S Kumar
Hornchurch, Essex

● Congratulations! You've won the prize for best letter!

FULL TO THE BRIM

After just a few weeks I was hooked on Peter Horton's Brimstone. Dark, stylish and thought provoking, it's obviously too cerebral for our American cousins as the show has been cancelled. I also hear that the Babylon 5 follow-up, Crusade, has been halted by Network 'Cold Feet'. Is there no way discerning fans seeking intelligent, thoughtful shows can voice their thoughts to network heads in America, perhaps with a view to a mid-season revival of such shows? Remember shows like Bonanza, Hill Street Blues, Coach, Cheers and The Practice have proved network heads wrong after slow starts!

W Scully
Birkenhead

● Sky One replies: 'We give the US distribution companies feedback on our ratings analysis and we let them know when a series is a success in the UK – regardless of how it faired in America. We are pleased you are enjoying* Brimstone and hope you also enjoy Crusade, *which we are currently showing.'

A GRIPPING ARGUMENT

In response to Mrs McGrath's letter (June Viewers' Views), the WWF's popularity is at an all time high and the new style implemented by Vince McMahon has brought him acclaim from the world's top critics. This new no-holds-barred style may not be everyone's cup of tea, but if you catch WCW on TNT you'll find more family oriented wrestling action with Hulk Hogan.
